Chain of Command

As a member of the IHSRA, I understand the channel that I need to use in case I have a grievance, protest:

First: All issues must come from the contestant only. Your parents, family and friends are not members. We appreciate their input and help; however, grievances must be from the members only. If your protest involves an occurrence at a rodeo, present your complaint prior to the end of the event to the event director. If the event has ended you must file grievance in writing to event director. If your protest does not concern a rodeo event then follow the channels below to resolve your issue.

1. Any complaint of rules governing an event will be handled in accordance with the National High School Rodeo Association Rule Book.
2. All other complaints must be submitted in writing to the Student President. If no resolution is reached, the Student President shall consult the Board of Directors. If resolution is not reached, the Board of Directors will consult the National Director of the Idaho High School Rodeo Association, Inc. If resolution is still not reached the National Director will contact the National Rodeo Association office for clarification. In order for a resolution to be reached, both parties must agree that it is in accordance with the rules. If either party does not agree, the Board of Directors shall consult the next level of authority. All complaints will be encouraged to be resolved at the lowest level possible.

As a member of the National High School Rodeo Association – I acknowledge that I understand the Chain of Command and know that if I or my family fail to follow it, I can be disciplined, disqualified or put on probation.
